

Baby Bloopers

Aaralynn, 5

My husband got promoted to vice president of his company. Our daughter this mean you're second My husband and I often ask our son if he needs to use the in charge after Obama?"

Jennifer Frey; Portland, OR

While she was looking at my wedding picture with me, my daughter said I looked just like Cinderella with my crown. With a puzzled expression, she then asked, "But what is Daddy supposed to be in asked, "Does harcy Risberg: Mount Joy, PA

Isaac, 4

restroom before leaving the house. Recently, while we were stopped at a red light, Isaac spotted a runne at the street corner who was jogging in place. He exclaimed, "That guy should have gone to the bathroom before he left. He must really have to pee, huh? Ann Vaske; Westerville, OH

Nolan, 3

When we were taking a hike through the woods, I asked Nolan what his favorite tree was. He said, "The pantry!" Ted Kellett; Raleigh, NC

Cassidy, 4

Our dog had surgery and had to have her leg shaved and staples put in as part of the procedure. I explained to my daughter that the vet would remove the staples during the follow-up visit. Cassidy asked, "Will they put her fur back on too?" Christina Hinkle: Huntsville, AL

Greta, 3

After planning an impromptu backyard tea party, Greta said, "I invited a lot of rabbits. Are you sure we have enough carrots?

Rilen, 2

My son had been potty trained for a few weeks when he noticed the flap on the front of his underwear. Excitedly, he told me, "Mommy, my underwear has a pocket for my money!" Courtney Butler; Anadarko, OK

Elena, 4

Our daughter was looking down at the words on her new shirt that read "Big Sister." Elena proudly told us. "I know how to spell the word sister. It's R-E-T-S-I-S."

crack us up & win!

Send your funny story or video to kidquotes@parents.com. Include your phone number, your child's name and age, and you city and state or province. It could appear on this page—and you

